Editors Morning Revald:

Ton will perceive that my letter is dated on Senday, and a nearcally evening it is. The all-barvading silestee, broken only by the note of my per is writing, the hum of the insects without, and the genute breaze coming is at my open window, laden not with "the balmy breath of increase-breathing morn," but with a breath of dewy softmess; charged, too, with the mild sweetness of sacred music from a neighboring charch, earrying my thoughts upward with the treath blue arch, dotted with its myriads of spangles of unapproachable beauty. Sweet Marning Herald : spangles of unapproachable beauty. Sweet sounds, that soothe us here, because they are welcome to Him who is all love. It is a fit time for contemplation, and it is not strange that the for contemplation, and it is not strange that the poets' they has seized upon the theme to inmortalize his nime. But I cannot furgive Young for stiribilities to the sable goddess, Night, "a rayless and sujesty." The glare of the nondey sun may quicken our impulses and warm us with our thoughts to the throne of the Great Architect. And those thoughts to the throne of the day.

This atternoon I paid a visit to the grace-yard—the only one in the vicinity. It is located at the western extremity of the town, and on the wostern extremity of the town, and on the be made a pretty remetery, and an organism to the modern of the flows. But it looks as if the dead were not only left "to bury the dead," but also to keep their memory green. The fence is saidy out of order. Many of the tombs-tones are bruken and etherwise dumaged. Stray cattle have a structure of the mourner to shed affection's tear. Most communities take a wide line and engine take a to reading the safe of the living. pride la so adorning their cometeries as to enadi cate, as far as possible, the sting of death; and in rendering them beautiful to the senses, they partly rob the grave of victory. Traveles, either for pleasure or information, are in the habit of visiting enen places, and in proportion as they are beautifed or wasted, speck well or ill of the reliement of the community to which they belong. As Franklin is pressing onward in the march of improvement, I trust this hint will not be thrown away.

Speaking of objects of visite and the march of improvement. I wonder if the remaining of our fail belongs to the latter. As to being worthy o Jan belongs to the latter. As to being worthy of wish, the mechanics abone take that view of it — The multicrors don't wish to "see it." The Sherill would, I presume, pre'ce having a neater piace than Meadville for the accommodation of his guests. His unctions kindness, however, makes his company perfectly at home anywhere, and his constant smiles almost deludes the pulsoner into a belief that he is merely enjoying .

As we have no lock-up nearer than Meadylib, what will the new police force do with all the ofsame as the render of hig poison instructed the purchases—flat catch the bed hig, then &c. It related that certain crimes, and modes of suicide become epidemic and fashionable at dif-ferent periods. This would seem to have some truth here at present. After the atimi-innest of imprisonment for debt, and on the passage of the law of talse pretences, every unlinely civilitor who had a doubtful debtor rushed before the committing magistrates with tales of how be was seduced into granting credit to the perfidious debtor upon his suppositive trend acres, grad-palaces or huge deposits in some banking house and how they had been deceived. Labor pretence thus became epidemic in the metropolis. So much so, that Judge King, the eminent jurist who presided there for a quarter of a century, characterized such suits as "civil suits run mad." During the last week or two this discuse seems to have taken field here. What were before ordiarry debts have assumed the character of grave offences against the public morals. But outraged public justice is easily satisfied. The culprit pays the dahl or secures its payment, and ho is re-whitewastied a free and houset man. The criminal arm of the law was only used to to pulsh erime. The individual debt, not to pulsh erime. The individual obligation is liquidated, the majority of the law has never been offended, and course. offended, and compounding a felony is a dead letter. The workmen at the new jult may take their own time, for improvement like the spills of John Brown, is muching on. The news market is rather dull as the commercial reporters say. Disturbances are quiet; whisky active; pro-visions have a downward tendency; house-rent decidedly up; demand large, and supply scare; health firm, and money easy. On the whole the the way of general news, but lest you attended think me's Sabbath breaker, and forlunde me ill, bwill fund what there is of it until next week. Therefore I will hid you good night and stop my chirping. Chicker.

-W. W. Corcorau, of Washington, D. On has presented to the corporation of Colum is College his fine building situa ten on H street, between Tuirteenth and ath'streets, now occupied by the Tailed States government as a surgical museum. The property is valued at $80,000. It was originally erected as a library and betare room for workingmen.
